

[illegible]

The map displays the Lohara village area, which is a cluster of land parcels numbered 1 through 80. The parcels are arranged in a grid-like pattern, with some parcels having additional labels like '2/B', '203', '27', '28', '29', '30', '31', '32', '33', '34', '35', '36', '37', '38', '39', '40', '41', '42', '43', '44', '45', '46', '47', '48', '49', '50', '51', '52', '53', '54', '55', '56', '57', '58', '59', '60', '61', '62', '63', '64', '65', '66', '67', '68', '69', '70', '71', '72', '73', '74', '75', '76', '77', '78', '79', '80'. The map also shows surrounding regions: Hasalgaon to the north, Nandurga to the northeast, Gubal to the east, Makani to the southwest, Chincholi kate to the south, Karanjgaon to the southwest, Tawshigad to the south, Udatpur to the southeast, and Murshadpur to the southeast. The map includes a coordinate grid with longitude and latitude values. Various colored lines (red, blue, green, yellow, orange) indicate boundaries and roads. The Lohara area is highlighted with a red outline. The map also shows a network of roads and a river or stream flowing through the area.

