

This topographic map depicts the Patawad region, characterized by a dense network of contour lines indicating varying elevations. The map is bounded by several neighboring areas: Kalgaon to the north and west, Ramishtewadi to the north, Hanumantwadi to the east, Gharalwadi to the east, Muttalwadi to the east, Bhurbhushi to the south, Panchagani to the south, Manewadi to the south, Gudhe to the south, and Manewadi to the west. The central part of the map shows a complex pattern of roads and paths, with a prominent road running diagonally from the northwest towards the center. The map also features numerous small, numbered plots or fields, suggesting a detailed land survey. The overall terrain appears to be hilly or mountainous, given the frequent contour lines.
