

The map displays a topographic representation of the Satara region in Maharashtra, India. It includes a grid of latitude and longitude coordinates. The map is bounded by a pink line, which likely represents a specific administrative or geographical boundary. Various colored lines (yellow, red, blue) are drawn across the map, possibly indicating different types of roads or boundaries. Numerous numerical labels are scattered across the map, likely indicating elevation or specific locations. The map also shows the names of surrounding areas: Jakatwadi, Godoli, Kondvali, Khindwadi, Sonegaon t satara, and Shendre.

